

WEBSITE REBUILD

SEUS HÁBITOS

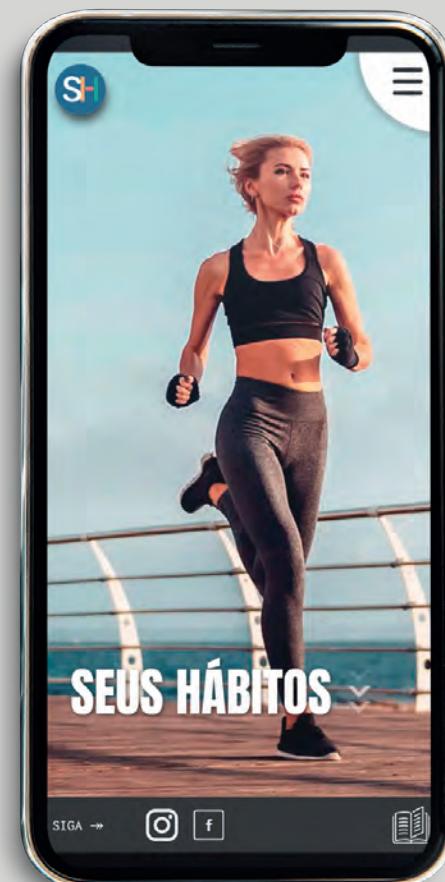

www.seushabitos.com.br

My mission was to provide a new look and feel to my website. Adding more functionalities to improve UI/UX and also give a sort of expensive look.

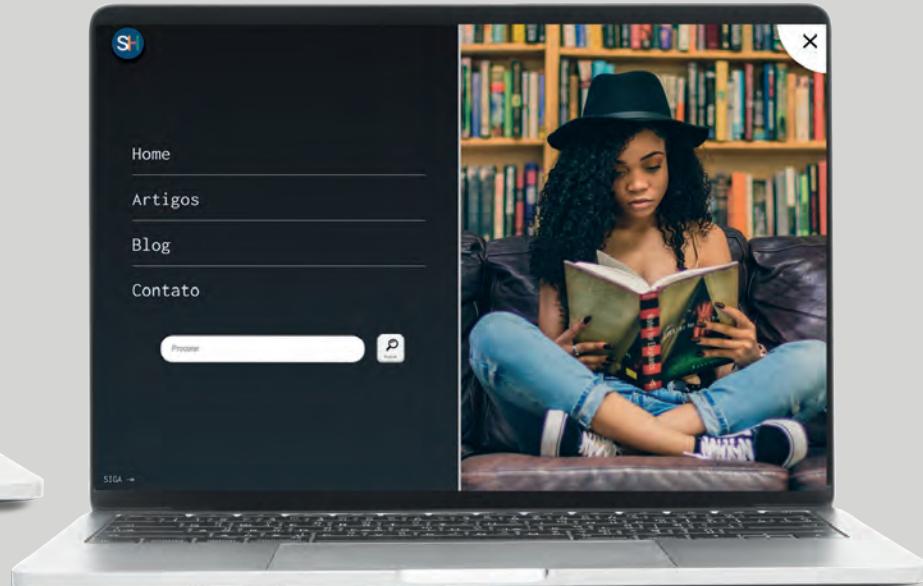

Everything is brand new. I had to put NodeJS/EJS behind and learn NextJS in the process.

Design and Development

Desing and development is a hobby that I'm just starting. I will not write about design, because it's easier to check it out at the website. My intention is to show my ideas when it comes to the experience, so the community can bring new point of view. The website is in Portuguese, so it's harder for those who don't understand the language to explore alone.

Many users have a hard time managing too many browser tabs.

SAVE FOR LATER

Every post card has an icon that you can hit and save to read later. Internal hyperlinks can also be dragged to the “Save for Later” area. The box appears when the user hovers over a hyperlink.

RIPPLE EFFECT

When the user clicks in something that don't have any visual response, a ripple effect comes out of the mouse arrow. The same happens when the screen is touched in mobile devices.

ON-DEMAND LOADING

NextJS make our life easier and it comes to optimizing images. I cannot say the same about embeded videos. Loading an image before the click it's easy in desktop because of autoplay.

Mobile devices it's way more tricky. So, I ask the user if he authorizes the video to load, for his benefit. Making easier to understand that he has to click again to play it. That's my hyphotesis, to say the truth.

ONE MORE ARTICLE

Every article has a pop suggestion of another one that add something to the current reading. Sometimes is the same as the hyperlink by the article end and sometimes it's not.
